When Southern University moved to Birmingham in 1918, the city was young and small. The people who moved the college put it on a stony hump on Enon Ridge, the northern rim of Jones Valley. Town was, the brochure said, only an eight to ten minute bicycle ride away, and the campus only  $1\frac{1}{4}$  miles from the city limit. In the valley, down where Third Avenue runs now, was a little creek and a sizable swamp, and Five Points West was still a dahlia nursery, but over to the west of the college, the steel mills were already industriously spewing smoke and fumes into a graying sky.

Since then the city has expanded, taken in new land and changed the land. The creek no longer has its swamp, although it now stinks in continuous, sullen rebellion to urbanization. Dahlias, too, seem to grow just as well on less profitable ground, but the steel mills have endured and grown and been joined by other mills, making atmospheric purity a dim, mythical image in the municipal memory.

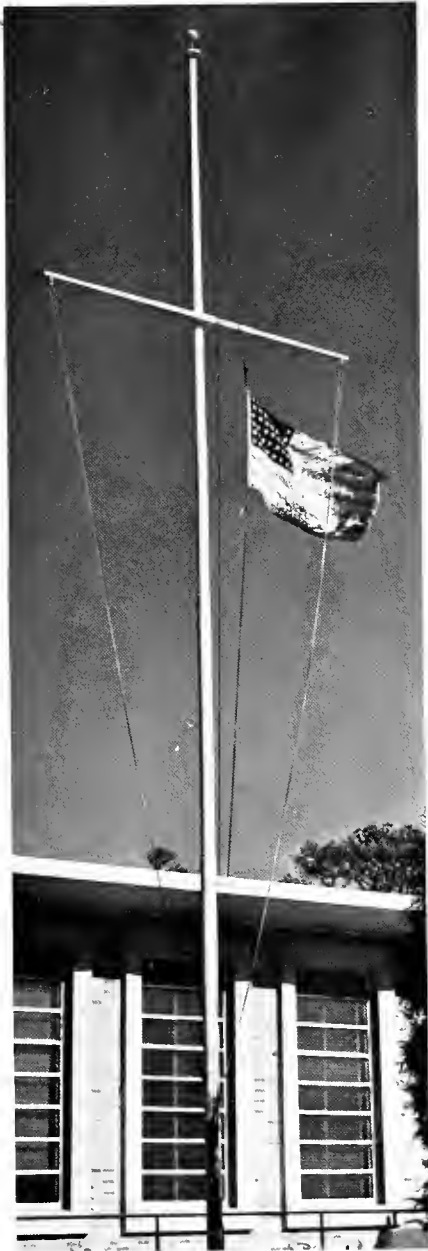

Steel has for so long been theme and center of Birmingham's story and of Birmingham-Southern's. Steel brought money to Birmingham and because the people in Birmingham who wanted a college had some of that money and Southern University of Greensboro had none, the college came. And all the while, as the city grew and rechanneled its creeks and dried up swamps, absorbed farms and spilled over out of its valley, Birmingham influenced this college far beyond the facts of name and location. Never, until the last few years, had anyone realized how completely this city and the region from which it draws its life have permeated the life and attitudes of the college and the minds and spirits of the college's people. Never have we been forced so persistently to the harsh task of analyzing and evaluating the true meaning of these few acres of rocky, poor—farm dirt; to the deep realization that the forces which stoke the furnaces have seldom fed the fires of the intellect.

What we're really trying to do in this book, and maybe it isn't even our job, is to impress you with the single historical fact of having lived in Birmingham during the past year. Our purpose is to help, or even make, you recall how things in this town and nation looked to you in that year. Without making a value judgment for you, we want you to remember exactly how it was in this city in May, 1963. We would have you remember watching the rioters and riot-watchers gather in the afternoon, the great hairy cops with carbines and shotguns, the smell of old pine shacks burning in the night down in the black ghetto.

Remember, long after you've forgotten your spring quarter point average or S.G.A. elections or who you dated that spring, that ten blocks from you, America changed. There was, really, little noise and little pain for such a great battle, the meeting of hundred year old adversaries in Kelly Ingram's park. Remember, too, how deeply you were touched and untouched by it all; how strongly you pulled for whichever side was yours and how happy or sad you were at the end of each day, and remember how, during Birmingham's slow crucifixion, you went to class and took tests and sat in the cafeteria drinking your iced tea.

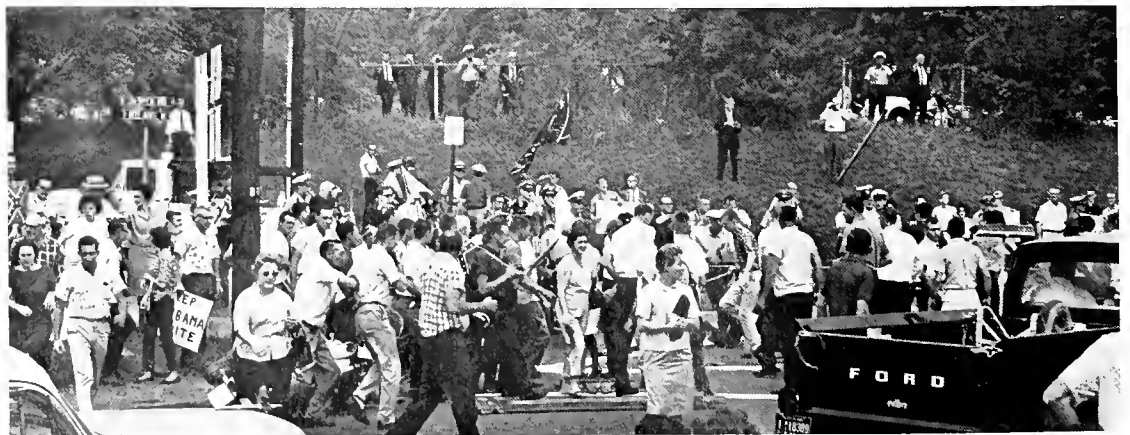

In speaking of the past year and how it affected students on this campus, there is no way to omit November 22, 1963, and, really, little use to remind you that on that day two bullets struck and blew away most of John Kennedy's head. Surely, you must remember exactly where you were and what you were doing when you heard of the shooting and, later, of the death. It was during finals, and most of us spent the whole weekend watching the reports and funeral on television, knowing of the necessity for study, but yielding to the greater demand of seeing in the formalized grief of John Kennedy's funeral the true meaning of being an American, and seeing this more clearly than Americans have since World War II.

These two events, the Negro Revolution and the assassination, formed the backdrop upon which we played our individual lives. There is no need here to recount the specific facts. There will be books and magazines—thousands of words—to set them down. We're in no danger of losing from our national history exactly what happened and when, but this is the only book intended to help you recall the way it was with you in that time.

"This is all very fine," you may say, "but what of my specific life; what does this actually mean to me?" It is really amazing, and frustrating, too, the mundane things which occupy us even in the midst of great and portentous times. After everyone, as we all did, took a few solitary moments to evaluate the enduring relevance in our individual lives of these events, after the secret interior cataloging and filing was over, the surface flow of our lives went on as before. No one may say in what exact direction or degree another's life was moved, but there is no doubt that each life was shaded in some way by the erratic mood and tempo of the past year. If our recent history was the canvas upon which each inscribed his own tiny and personal motif, we must all wonder what marks we left on that canvas, on ourselves, and on each other.

The image of the self-conscious college student, crusading, meditating, subjectifying his whole environment, has become as much a part of the American popular culture as the concept of the frenetic teenager. The fact that parents and teachers look back on their youthful struggles with patronizing amusement doesn't really alter the immediacy of our own struggles. And whether for good or ill, this college has a way of rendering these problems immediate and imperative and of creating a deep seated disturbance that one may avoid in the anonymity and passivity of a larger, more undemanding school. The decision of choosing a niche in the pocked and shelved wall of society; the hope of maybe doing something a little beyond forty hours, two weeks paid, nice house and kids; the gnawing recurrence of an insane idea, of really having enough guts to put those fine discussion group ideas into your actual life—all these demand resolution; all of them lie with you at night and go with you in your waking like an old man's wet-weather ache.

There is a way to survive, though. When the big questions—those of future, ambition, and sanity—became too great, you can always submit to the mesmerism of campus life. There is no narcosis so complete, no numbness so sublime as the complex, non-crucial routine of subsisting on this campus. Among labs and library corridors, with erudite, unthinking research in beige-walled dorm rooms you can actually accomplish the difficult task of lasing yourself—from yourself.

Surely, there must be some here who are either so well adjusted or so unconscious to begin with that such a spiritual vacation at some time during four years is not necessary. But most of us, soon or late, become so suffocated that nerveless absorption with the task of learning is a welcome respite. It is like living by an outline, form without content, in which the spirit is an objective and uncaring spectator to the pasturings of its body.

It is very easy to fall into the habit of labeling that which we are too lazy to analyze or unable to define as intangible, and you have probably heard it said that Southern has such a quality, some pervading essence which draws and holds people to it. Southern does have an intangible, or at least an elusive, quality which sets it apart; but this feeling produces estrangement and affection, loyalty and distaste in relatively equal amounts.

It is this quality which produces our need for occasional self isolation and which spawns the perennial talk of transfer to a more attractive, sophisticated campus. Paradoxically, the same aspect of life at Southern brings us back each year in spite of our protestations and creates in us a grudging, but tenacious, affection.

If we cannot pinpoint what it is about this school that belongs uniquely to it, at least it is not difficult to say when it operates most strongly; when this hill becomes a complete world for you, detached from outside ties of location and affection; when you feel like a tiny, sterilized bearing in a great, slow grinding gear, and there is a persistent heat behind your eyes that means you are torn between an absolute hate and repulsion for every person here and a staggering need to have just one person care if you now or ever walk down that cold hill in the early morning. The time when it really gets you is winter quarter.

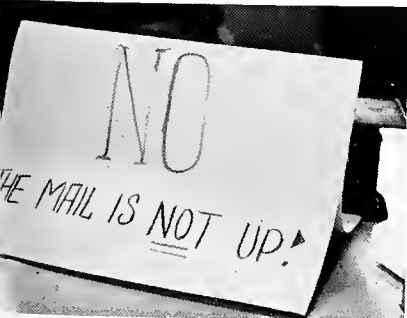

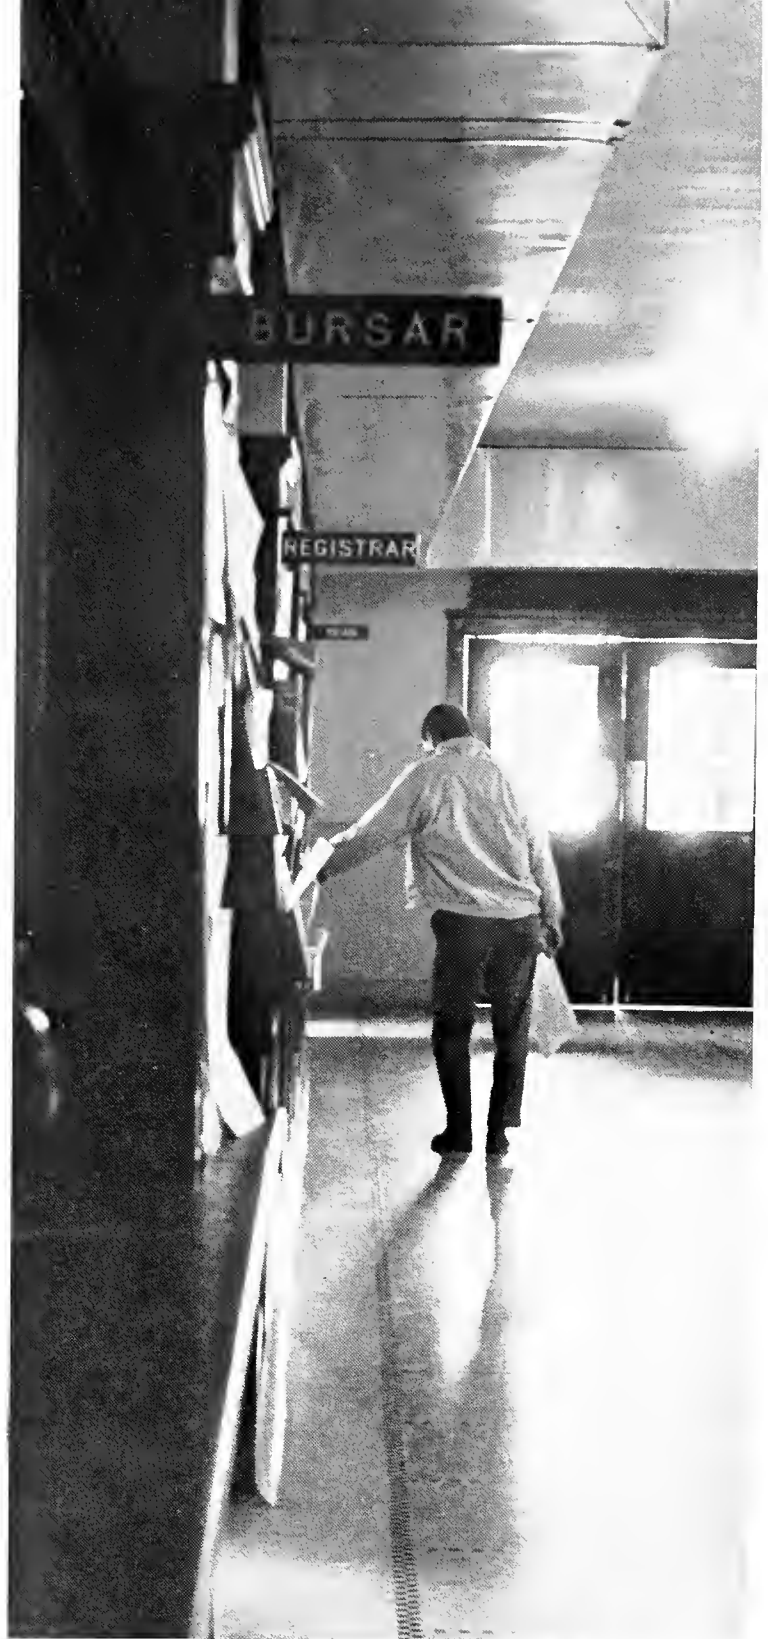

December, January, and February as they are in Birmingham are months which shouldn't happen to any year, any place. It's cold—a damp, garment penetrating cold that defies the feeble old point-caked radiators, the kind you can lean against and get a streak of warmth up the back of each thigh and buttock while the rest of your body remains as chill as the rest of the room. Just the cold wouldn't really be so bad, but for the rain coming slow and steady for weeks on end until the quadrangle becomes spongy underfoot and crisscrossed with little domes of dead grass. Everyday in class you sit and feel the moisture slip through your shoes, quietly assured that someone has walked off with the umbrella you left dripping in the hall. The final thing about winter here, though, is the utter and total grayness that makes the buildings uglier even than they are and the people seem ashen and wilted. Too, over all is the industrial stench of Birmingham, which carries on the wet air and strikes you on the day's first door opening. For many, that smell of Birmingham on a cold, gray, 7 o'clock morning before the sun burns the vapors away must be the enduring mental abbreviation for that pernicious depression that stalks us all in the winter.

It is this internal burden, engendered and nurtured in solitude, which inevitably sends a few home before the work is done. But each of us, too, labors under an external burden that is very much a part of this college and constitutes its biggest problem: Administrationism.

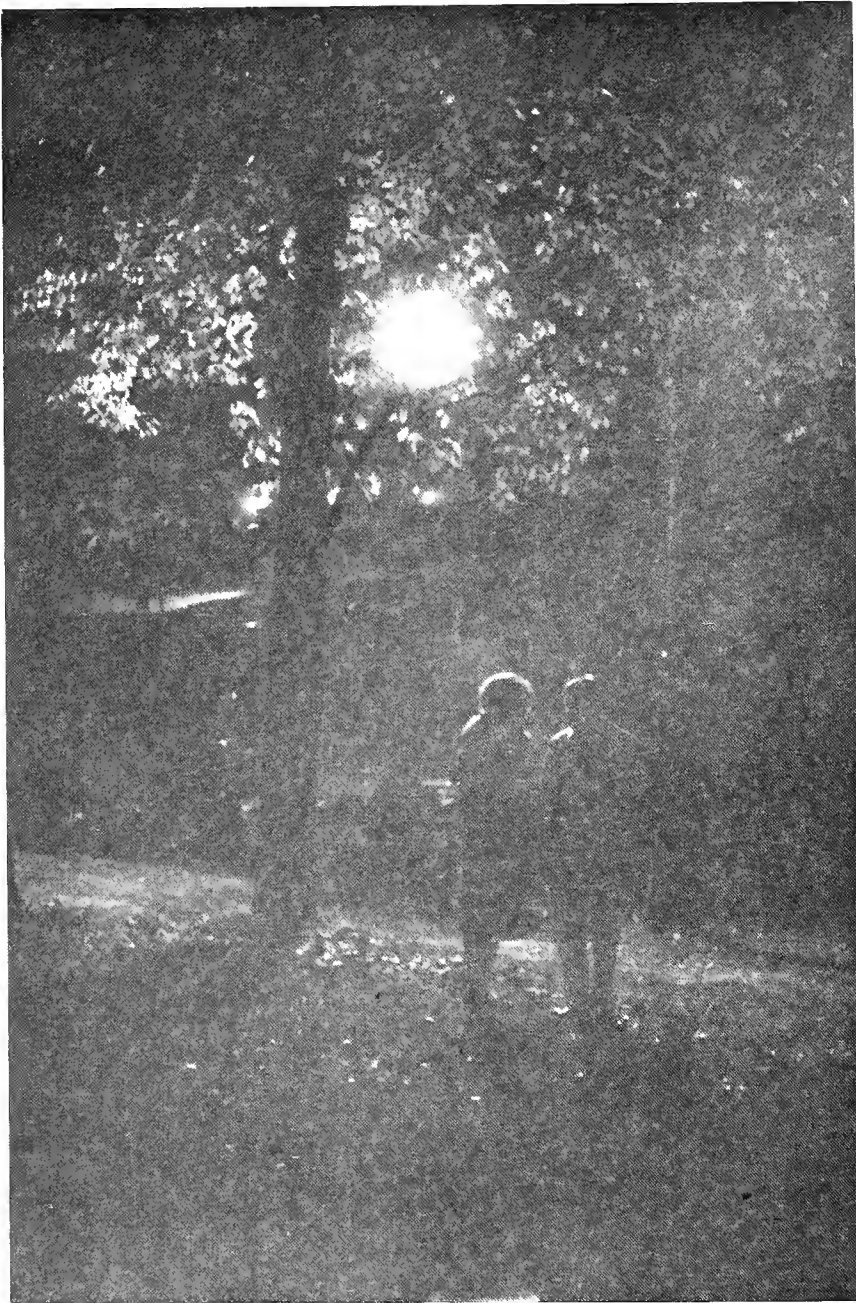

Administrationism means that total fascination with antiseptic account books and impersonal grade point averages which characterizes second floor Mungler. It's what gives you the feeling that they would gladly sacrifice your present or future happiness, career—even burn your body—just to keep the books in balance. Administrationism is what causes your throat to constrict and your hands to get sweaty when you stand there trying to schedule a class or find out how many hours and quality points you need. You know that it's not a question of if anything is wrong; just how wrong.

It is really amazing that such a tremendous body of regulations and procedures can accrue around the task of directing one thousand lives. After awhile, you actually begin to think of yourself as a being composed of polarities of obedience and non-obedience caught amid the subtle manifestations of the gap between the leaders and the masses: the sidewalks that don't go where anyone wants to walk, but serve only to awkwardly circumnavigate chain-guarded areas where grass seed have been spread on the rocks; the convocations called simply because every week has a Wednesday; the fact that the college employs someone who zealously tickets unstickered cars on a campus where parking has never been a problem. There is a deeper schism, too. One occasioned not by lack of communication but by absence of common purpose. One that fosters evasiveness, furtiveness, and a "get by" attitude among us, and is evidenced by the fact that so many officials work so tirelessly at holding us to a system of behavior which has little relevance to our education and which many have found personally unfeasible.

And so the college contributes its part to our seasonal withdrawal and introspection. And Southern can really expect little loyalty toward the institution itself as long as it adheres to a policy of rules made to fit the occasion and after the fact. Little loyalty will come as long as navigating among the existing rules, policies, and practices continues to remind us of daily going to the same stone wall, backing off ten equal paces and daily running headlong into that wall.

Occasionally, even here, a person may realize that there is a remedy for that lump of loneliness, frustration, and impatience which lies day and night in your stomach; that makes you want to scream obscenities at noon in the cafeteria, or drive far away for a few days, just get a motel room and wander if you've been missed. But every now and then another person comes swimming out of their kin, and the hazy dream of two lives merge into a new definition. The meeting needn't be beautiful, the dialogue cool, nor anyone particularly dashing; the only requirement is another person real enough at that particular moment to snap you back out of yourself. The story isn't new, and we have no special claim to it. Probably the script is pretty much the same everywhere at any time, but the special joy of giving a mutual damn, of a warm and opposite body makes the routine bearable. Just having another human point to aim at can give you a new courage and flair for life.

Life here, though, is set within boundaries of time: September and May, Christmas and Spring, and when the threads of continuity and rapport are broken by absence, short or long, you may never find that same person again. Neither is this the place for permanence nor the time in your life for lasting, and the sadness lies in knowing that the difference from the way it was before is really within yourself.

It isn't very hard to figure out what to do then; follow the old routine. Everything has waited, conspiring, knowing that you would come full circle back to yourself alone again. Then draw yourself up into the smallest space onto the most easily defended ground. There, still, are the books and the long, long walk across the quad, past the concrete circle where the sun dial used to be, between two ugly buildings made bearable by the night.

*Who is he, this man of many faces?
A fifty-year-old boy wonder who . . .
plays tennis two hours every day looks at home in a heavy fog with damp cigar and his hands in his pockets fears nothing except bats in a dark room can step onstage and into any character can make a girl smoke a cigar and pretend to like it continually receives top halves for his glasses plays first trash can, last chair in the symphony of the absurd can give a 98-pound girl courage to climb a 60-foot ladder and hang curtains on non-existent rods collects more disciples daily—and deserves them dares to present the new and often misunderstood stops what he's doing to chase moths demands the impossible—and gets it manages to be the forboding professor and still keep his classes laughing understands both tragic and comic,
the reasonable and the absurd*

Who is this man? His many faces demand many names:

in memoriam

Dwight Isbell died in an automobile accident, during the summer of 1963. He would have been a senior this year.

In life, he would likely have disdained such tributes as annuals usually give. We offer this page, then, only to recall to you Dwight as you may have known him. Here we shall say only true things of him. They will suffice.

Dwight was the dominating intellectual force among the students, and he respected the responsibilities of this often unenviable position. Above all, Dwight Isbell possessed the high seriousness of the true scholar.

For many years Birmingham-Southern has operated, and correctly so, under the theory that maintaining an able faculty should take precedence over the construction of an imposing physical plant. More than half of the sixty-nine faculty members hold doctorate degrees, and they average approximately fifteen years of teaching experience. Unlike many institutions, Southern places classroom performance and interest in the pupil ahead of research and publication.

The college's major problem is not recruiting, but holding, able faculty members, since Southern has become a hunting ground for schools from other parts of the country.

president

President and Mrs. Phillips entertain with a faculty tea.

Dr. Howard Mitchell Phillips, Sr., is serving his first year as the sixth president of Birmingham-Southern College. He has filled the positions of professor of biology and dean of the graduate school, Emory University, and president of Alabama College, Montevilla.

Dr. Phillips received his B.S. and M.A. degrees from Wake Forest College, and his Ph.D. from the University of Virginia. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Sigma Xi, and Pi Kappa Alpha.

In his public statements, Dr. Phillips has avoided lip-service to highly idealistic goals in favor of the more realistic goals of money, expansion, and recruitment.

In referring to his "Master Plan", Dr. Phillips made the following statement, June, 1963, immediately after he assumed his office.

Our assignment will not be easy; it will require exceptionally hard work, dedication, cooperation and a tremendous amount of money. It will demand an understanding attitude and a zealous commitment on the part of all of us. We shall begin immediately to project out new goals.

Southern for many years has had sufficient goals, aims, and mottoes; now it is hoped that under the leadership of Dr. Phillips she will receive the physical means to make the ideal a reality.

President's Home.

activities

Editors:
Jo Gober and Beth McConnell

The title "activities" is vague and comprehensive enough to cover the diverse functions included herein. It should be noted that organized functions are within the realm of the gung-ho and that the average student still depends on the more spontaneous and personal amusements.

may day, 1963

Spring is a trying time for scholars. After diligently developing fine minds all winter, some actually discover that they do have bodies and give themselves over to such glandular pursuits as houseparties and creek-banking.

Southern's official means of safely channeling the vernal energy is May Day. The 1963 May Day entailed a concert by the prodigal folk duet of Richard & Jim, field events and allowing girls to wear bermuda shorts in class. As if this wasn't enough blatant indecency, there was dancing in the street during the evening. Despite so much careful planning, however, May Day 1963 managed to be quite a lot of fun.

I'm so down cool.

"Munchin' Melon" at the Zeta's May Day booth.

Unofficial.

The Tau's booth capitulated on our destructive tendencies.

The 1963 May Queen title went to Miss Dean Miller. She was crowned by a former Southern May Queen, Mrs. Cynthia Ford Hearn. Dean is a Senior, majoring in French and hails from Pensacola, Florida. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority.

SAE-AOPi "Monks" take first place

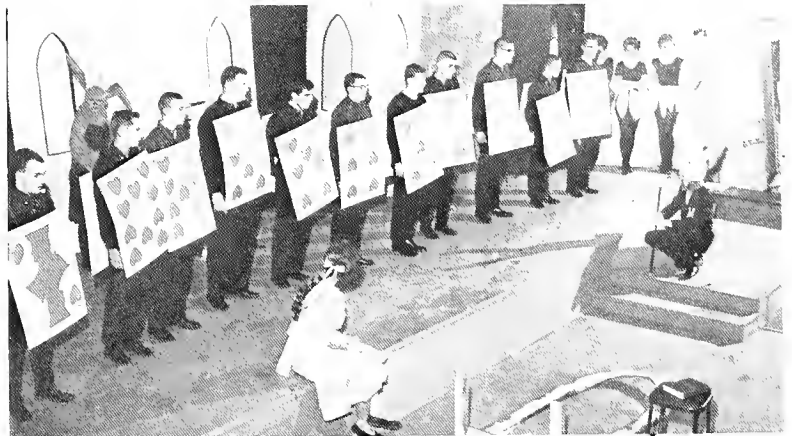

Catspaw is a formalized version of the favorite campus pastime of inter-Greek cutting. Gathering material is no problem since everyone has an abundance of idiosyncrasies, and there is no such thing as a real secret at Southern.

1963 was a cleanup year for Catspaw since the 1962 show had been justifiably declared dirty. Virtue, in the form of expurgated skits, triumphed in the end, as students discovered that being wholesome was almost as much fun as being trashy.

LXA-Indies win second place with their version of 'Alice in Wonderland'

KA's and KD's say, "Some fairy tale, but third place!"

"You must not laugh at me, darling, but it has always been a girlish dream of mine to love someone whose name was Ernest. There is something in that name that seems to inspire absolute confidence."

Ernest in Love, the gay musical presented last Spring, was adopted by Anne Crowell and Lee Pockriss from Oscar Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest. It was College Theatre's first musical to be presented in Munger Auditorium.

"Alice, what do you think is the first thing that a man notices about a woman?"

"In a moment of mental abstraction for which I can never forgive myself, I deposited my manuscript in the bassinette—and placed the baby in the handbag!"

Orientation means education by repetition and indoctrination through boredom.

rush, 1963

Rush means talking to people you don't know, about things you don't care about. Rush takes a week, starting with heat and thunder, and ending in apathy. What rush really does is determine the course of Greek competition for the coming year, and there is no lack of hard nose competitiveness as each group strives to lure young and unwary individuals into the warmth of its collective bosom.

Rush may be hard sell or soft sell, but it always boils down to the basic, and not always pleasant, fact of acceptance or rejection.

Party invitations are processed.

Please, Fairy Godmother . . .

Happiness . . . Relief . . .

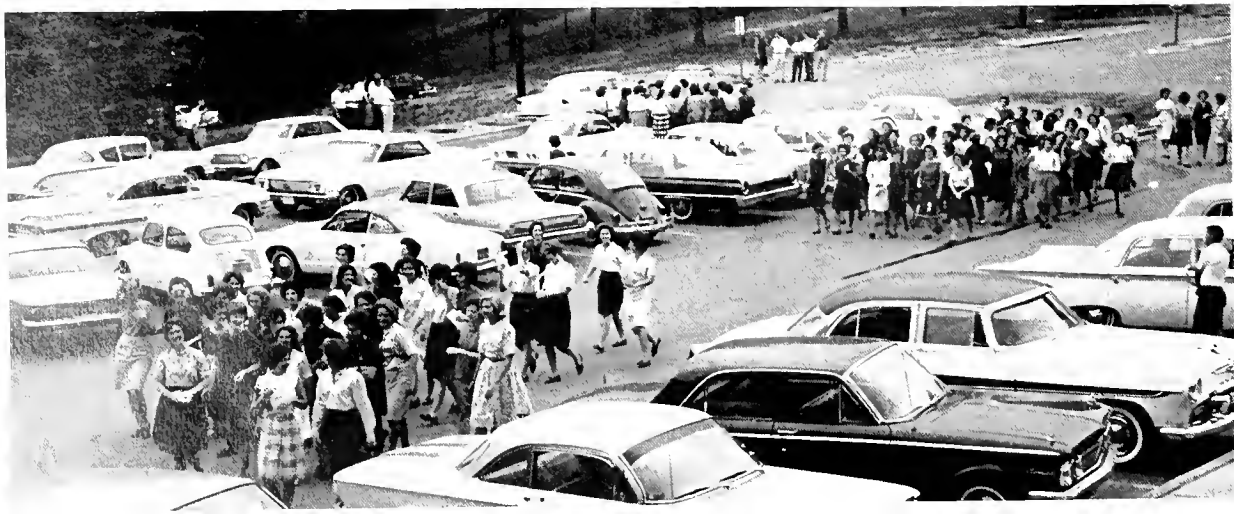

Seasoned vets keep a safe distance while surveying the new recruits.

miss southern accent

Judges cheerfully look over the contestants.

After the student vote, twenty-five semi-finalists faced the judges . . . charmingly.

When thinking of things distinctly 'Southern, one must not omit the Southern Accent Pageant. The pageant is conducted in a fashion similar to the Miss Alabama Contest and engenders the same spirit of good old American cut-throat competition. While the mole population looks on in bemused detachment, the contestants, cheered on by the various sisterhoods, really turn on the snow as the veneer of gentility wears thinner and thinner and the distance between smile and sneer progressively lessens.

The Pageant itself is usually well attended, and with reason. For if the air of suspense is a little contrived, the entertainment is usually worth the admission price. The Journeymen gave a competent, even if somewhat dispirited, performance while the judges deliberated and a sudden thunderstorm reminded everyone that their car windows were down.

And then there were fifteen.

I don't know, Mary Ann. Why da elephants climb trees?

But Lily Mae promised me.

Shirley Herrin crowns her successor, Rose Coleman, Miss Southern Accent.

the pops concert

At this point I'll take my third bow.

The choirs struck out in a new direction this year with a Pops Concert. This repertoire gave the program broader appeal among students, but the performance was not of the consistent high quality of which the choir is capable.

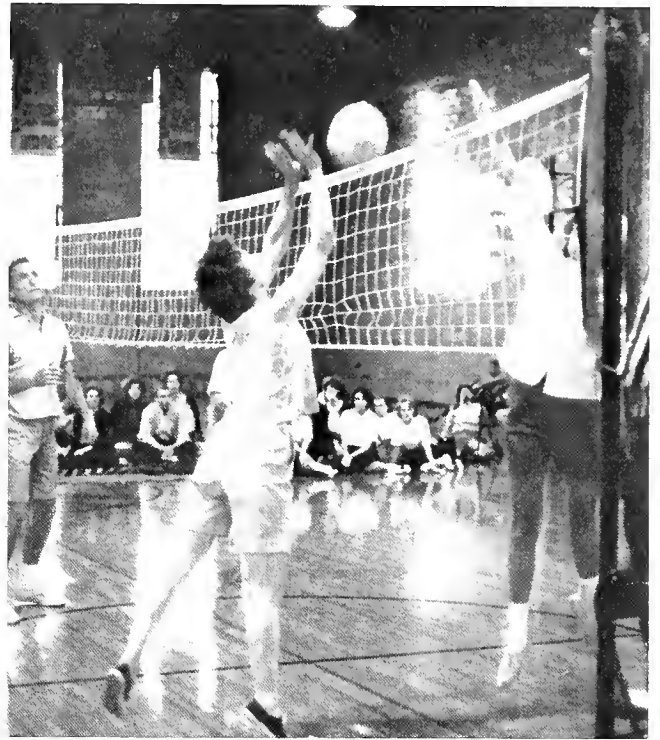

They sing folk songs, too.

Judy Short, Miss Alabama, joins the Men's Chorus.

The set designer insists upon manufacturing his wallpaper manually, flower by flower, with stencil and spray gun.

The fall play, N. F. Simpson's One Way Pendulum, concerned an ingenious plot to increase the death rate in England by shifting the earth's axis and bringing the polar cap nearer. Kirby Graamkirby, the master planner, had grown up with an obsessive fondness for mourning black, and found murder too distasteful a method of making such apparel appropriate.

"But my arms are too short."

"You really shouldn't have put so much catsup in the asparagus."

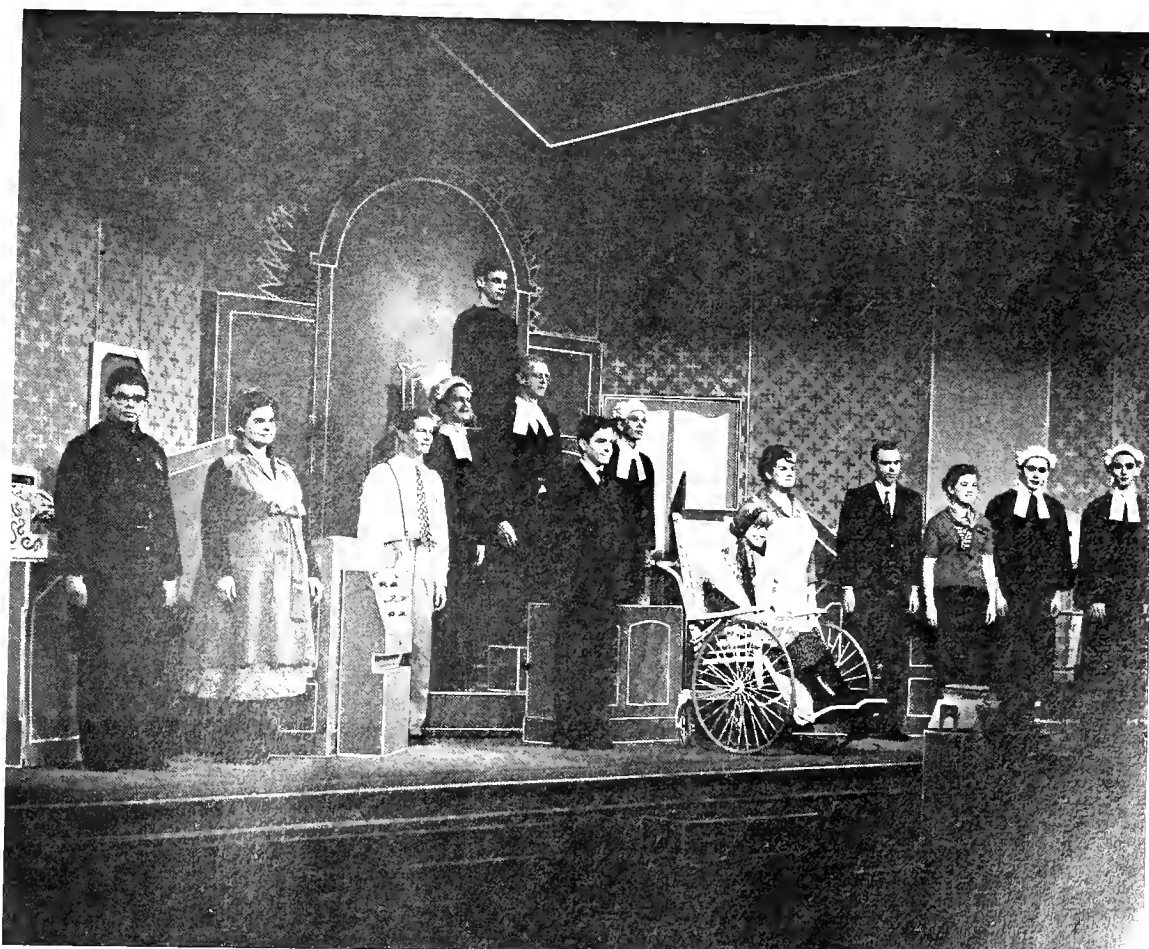

"Soy! If I give the whole damn family food poisoning, I won't have to cook tomorrow!"

"What do you mean, you taught the parking meter to sing?"

The cast takes its curtain call. Standing in the judge's bench is Grady Clarksan. The two counsel and the judge stand before him: Harry Mueller, Kerry Pennington, and Howard Cruse.

"Alabama needs a two party system."

Birmingham-Southern was host to a debate by local attorneys sponsored by the Pre-Low Society and the Independent College Association. Resolved: "Alabama needs a two party system." The student body proved themselves to be apathetic, by not bothering to attend.

The fifth annual Birmingham-Invitational Forensics Tournament, sponsored by Birmingham-Southern and Howard, was held at Southern. Twenty teams from colleges in eight Southern and Eastern states entered the tournament, and Liberty National Insurance Company provided the Trophies. There were 132 debaters entering 33 events.

christmas

Freed from the prospect of finals immediately before the holidays, the Hilltop generated an unusual amount of Yule spirit. The faculty responded to such pre-season levity by assigning a generous amount of holiday study, but, as always, S.G.A. had a party, and, as always, the student body survived this bit of planned jubilation and went on to have a very merry and commercial Xmas. The Ministerial Association voted unanimously to put Christ back next year, then we all went home.

casino party

The Alpha Chi Omega Casino Party was quite a surprise. That is, it was a surprise in that it was a rather widely acclaimed success. The party established a campus first, being the first time a group of students had a good time in our beautiful, antiseptic student center. The Hilltop News pointed out that the party proved that a Greek group could give a successful all-campus function. The S.G.A. Social Committee pouted.

Supervised sin!!

Say that again, Smart . . . !

And by and by, the elephant came unto the tree . . .

religious emphasis week

Reverend James Glass of Vanderbilt Divinity School was the Religious Emphasis Week speaker. He was an entertaining speaker of the type we've come to expect: witty, ingratiating at times almost risqué, and with an "I understand the problems of the searching, complex-ridden modern student" approach.

The believers were happy and said, "Look, see how liberal are we modern Christians." The agnostics were reluctantly interested and said, "Watch it, he'll con you." Finally, with everyone duly witnessed to, the week passed, the speaker left, and religion faded comfortably into the hinterlands.

Most of us liberals smoke cigars.

The Tradition

mr. hilltopper

A.T.O. and friends entertain.

Lest we forget the poor children, AOPi presents its annual Mr. Hilltopper Show, which serves the secondary purpose of reaffirming our faith in the good old American bloc vate. The talent was better this year than usual. And the chorus line tried valiantly; but, embarrossingly, they were their own worst oct. But it's the tradition that counts.

Mr. Hilltopper, Cary DeLoach, Best AOPi, Roseanne Harpe; and Shaw Director, Carolyn Atchison pose at the end of another all-campus function.

The Screaming Zetas, Scream.

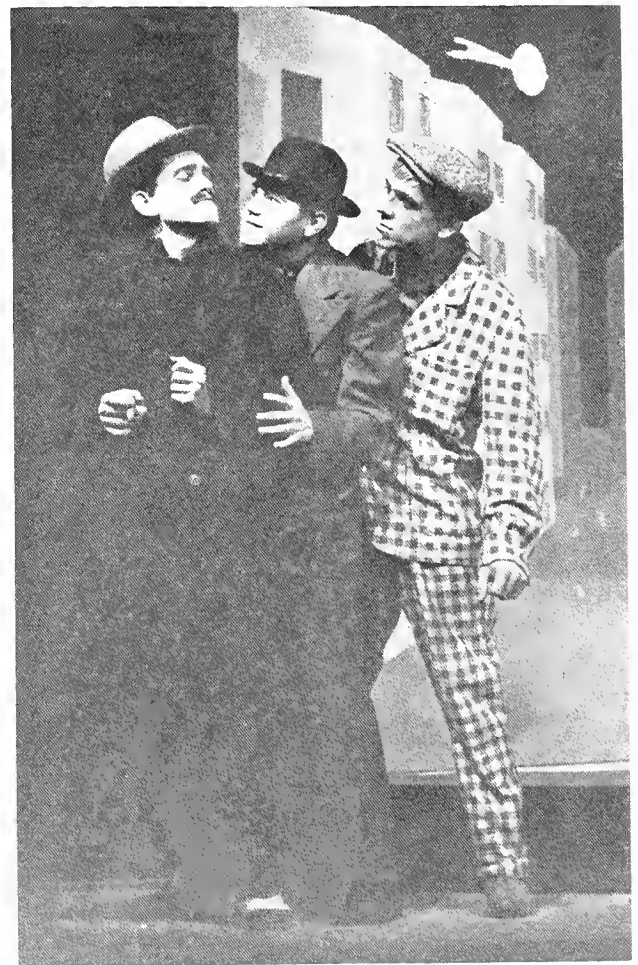

The Powell-ized Shakespeare is immortalized on celluloid. On-location filming took place everywhere from Fraternity Row to Elmwood Cemetery.

The College Theatre's winter production, Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, was presented in the style of the silent films of the twenties. Keystone Cops pursued gangsters religiously dedicated to villainy, while two sets of lovers were tossed about by the winds of romantic melodrama before finally achieving Hoppiness.

The comedy ran for four sell-out nights.

"In this, though I cannot be said to be a flattering honest man, it cannot be denied but that I am a plain-dealing villain!"

"Thou naughty villain, thou art full of piety as shall be proved. Though it be not written down, yet forget not that I am an ass, as well as a wise fellow, an officer, a householder, and as pretty a piece of flesh as any in Messino!"

Miss Southern Accent is selected every year on a basis of beauty, charm, and poise. Miss Southern Accent for 1964 is Rose Coleman, a Junior from Russellville, Alabama.

Rose, a Fine Arts major, was sponsored by the Student's Art League. She is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority and has been in the Birmingham-Southern May Court, the Miss Alabama Cantest, and chosen as the Franklin County Maid of Cotton.

As Miss Southern Accent, Rose will serve as the official hostess at campus affairs and represent the school at cultural and civic events.

One sure way to start an argument is to bring up the subject of fraternities and sororities. With a membership of over fifty percent of the student body, the Greeks are the dominating force in the student power structure, that is in the very little power that students have. At any rate, membership is virtually a pre-requisite in the honoraries race.

In any debate, the Greeks are at a disadvantage in that they accept as a basic premise the rather tenuous proposition that fifty or so people can actually be best friends when, in reality, the ties of brotherhood often have a chapping effect. Too, the anti-Greeks always yell conformity. Well, if the members of each fraternity or sorority do move as a group, at least each group has a distinctive, if not always savory, flavor, and amusingly enough, each and every order cherishes the deep seated belief that they are the only real people.

Southern's Greeks must be given credit as one of the major forces in drawing students here and one of the stronger factors in holding them. Greek groups also provide a consistent social life for their members beyond that offered by the inadequate, cut and dried school program.

panhellenic council

The Panhellenic Council is composed of three representatives; the president, rush chairman, and representative; from each of the sororities on campus. They serve to promote friendly relations, among the sororities. They supervise policy matters relating to sorority life.

Their chief function is to formulate plans for organized rush, and to govern rush activities. Rush is opened in the fall with a Panhellenic tea for all new girls. The Council under the guidance of the Dean of Women, Mrs. Robert Cothran prepares information to be given to all girls going through rush.

Women's Intramurals:

On Thanksgiving Day, 1940, the Birmingham-Southern football team, composed of twenty-two men, defeated Howard College 9 to 6, and intercollegiate football at Southern was finished forever. Intramurals were set up that year, and plans were made for such pursuits as horsemanship, fencing, and soccer. Since then, the P. E. department has settled for less aristocratic activities, but the more ordinary sports continue to occupy a surprisingly large amount of leisure time and interest.

Fraternity sports are followed with great enthusiasm and usually amount to little more than legalized mayhem and organized hostility as everyone gives their all for "The Brothers." Sorority basketball and softball games combine to help destroy any vestigial traces of the myth of Southern womanhood.

When Southern discontinued football, it settled on the more inexpensive and sophisticated games of tennis and basketball. This year a golf team has been started, perhaps in anticipation of the back party being converted into a much promised eighteen hole course.

tennis

The tennis team has the advantage of appealing to those who really enjoy their sport and the disadvantage of a lack of experienced players. The Southern team suffers from the lack of scholarships. Most players participate out of their love for the game and are to be commended for this.

Mr. Leslie Longshore, in his first year as tennis coach, brings a great deal of playing and coaching experience to his position and will certainly inject a new vitality into the program.

organizations

Southern is pregnant with organizations. It is the great haunt and true home of the organization man, but organization with a little "a" for at Southern one collects rather than works for organizations.

Organizations grow and fade at Southern like mushrooms in a dank cellar. We had only to rid ourselves of P. E. and I.H.S. (In His Service) before Psychology and Alpha Phi Omega burst forth in regimented and newly mimeographed splendor. Most organizations vaguely classify themselves as being "service" groups. There are "service" organizations for all ages and sexes (such as Sophomore Women's, Senior Men's, ad infinitum), as well as for most known or admitted problems, needs, and denominations. The campus is saved from total servility only by the fact that none of them do anything beyond meeting and planning, and that most members consider the elections of officers to be their major purpose for existence anyway. Never have the vineyards of the Lord been so amply staffed with so many listless tailors.

student government association

The Student Government Association has received several unfortunate breaks in the past few years. One of these is the fact that its initials fit perfectly into the mock-religious theme song of a Walt Disney production dating from our early teens: Mic-Key-MoSGA. The second, and most unfortunate, of these breaks is that the group fits the song's connotations as well as its initials fit the meter.

Actually, the reason for S.G.A.'s perennial impotence is so obvious that we usually overlook it entirely. The word "government" implies that the association has the power to pass rules and the sanctions to enforce them. Our S.G.A., like that on most campuses, possesses neither the power nor the sanctions. So, it isn't that they don't want to do anything; they move and second and pass, propose and resolve with enthusiasm and high seriousness. They just can't.

S.G.A. does serve one major function, that of bookkeeper for the $14,000 paid by students for the remarkably evasive purpose of Student Activities. Sometimes they allocate this money correctly, usually indifferently, but all too often they screw even this function up. In full view of the financial record of the 1963 annual, which operated on a very tight budget, and for the first time in several years, finished in the black by less than $100, the S.G.A. cut the budget of the 1964 Accent by $400. The result of this ostentatious financing is that each student must now pay $.50 for an annual whose cost is supposed to be covered in his quarterly Student Activities payments.

president's cabinet

The President's Cabinet is the dead-horse-whipping branch of S.G.A. It consists of, among others, the Activities Chairman who hires the bands that play with shrieking guitars and driving beat in the splendid solitude of Snavelly ballroom; the Parking Chairman, who handles the mammoth problem of arranging 300 cars on as many acres; and the Spirit Chairman, who rides herd with paounding drum, clanging rattlers, and slightly embarrassed cheerleaders over our sometimes spirit.

Indeed, 'schoal spirit' is our deadeast and mast fervently whipped, horse. The students, much to S.G.A.'s dismay and their own credit, have never greeted their basketball team with the brainless fervor of the Auburn fan. The Spirit Committee may someday realize (but not this year) that the best a de-emphasized athletic program can expect is a rather muted cheer.

Mortar Board is the highest honor that a senior woman may receive. The qualifications for membership are an over-all 3.0 average and a history of service on the campus. The members are selected by faculty nomination and unanimous vote of the old members.

The purpose of this organization is to teach leadership by example, encourage scholarship through participation, and render service where needed.

To contribute to this year's scholarship fund, Mortar Board sponsored a book exchange.

omicron delta kuppa

Omicron Delta Kappa is the outstanding service and honorary organization for upper division men. In its selection for membership it recognizes and encourages achievement in scholarship, athletics, student government, social and religious affairs, publications, speech, music, drama, and the other arts. Through this representative selection, an organization is created of men in all phases of collegiate life. Each year a member of the faculty is also tapped with the purpose of bringing faculty and student body together on a basis of mutual interest and understanding.

Two of the annual projects of Omicron Delta Kappa are the student directory and the alumni banquet.

honor council

The Honor Council is composed of eight upper division students elected by the Student Government, the dean of the college, the dean of students, and the dean of women. The Honor Council's responsibility is to inform the students as to the nature of the honor system in effect at Birmingham-Southern College, to promote the observance of the honor code, and to try offenders.

Most Southern students come from high schools in which cheating is, by the many, overtly condoned and practiced, and, by the ethical or fearful few, consciously ignored. Working with this raw material, the school has utilized the code and council to make classroom integrity a present, working, even if still unaccustomed, reality. Its hardest task has been, and is, to convince the student that ignoring another's offense is as harmful as committing the same offense oneself. Its great challenge is the clearer delineation and enforcement of the ethics of proper writing outside the classroom.

student advisory committee to the president

The Student Advisory Committee defines no over-riding goal or purpose far itself. Dr. Phillips organized it at the beginning of the fall quarter in hopes that such a committee might be able to breach the durable wall of mutual misunderstanding that exists between student and administration. Toward this end, the committee simply discusses campus problems without attempting to provide immediate remedies.

The creation of such a committee is a hopeful sign to those who would like to see Southern achieve the unity implied in that much used term 'academic community.' From this promising start, it remains to be seen if the Student Advisory Committee will come to shore the same limbo occupied by the similarity conceived and now defunct Student Life Committee.

The Triangle Club is an honorary organization composed of outstanding members of the Sophomore Class. Each spring new members are elected from the Freshman Class on the basis of leadership and service. The Triangle Club helps the college host visitors, helps during orientation, and aids in May Day festivities.

Primarily, though, the Triangle Club helps its members. It is the first step in the non-academic honorary race, and from Triangle Club to ODK or Mortar Board is a mere hop, skip, and a climb. Also, it serves as a testing ground in which the candidate learns to dynamically do-nothing in the best other-directed fashion.

The Publications Board is the supervisory body for the three campus publications, Hilltop News, Quad, and Southern Accent. The board consists of the editors and business managers of the publications with the president and secretary of S.G.A. and three faculty members. The Board is to be commended in that it has never served as a means of administration censorship, always choosing to leave the actual running of the publications in student hands. The major criticism of the Board however, must be that it has never served to stimulate any controversy which merited censorship.

The publications themselves are of varying quality, their major weakness being the narrowness of student participation.

The Hilltop News, in the past, has taken stances ranging from the gossipy passivity of the high school paper to the other extreme of conscious and opinionated aggressiveness. The 1963-64 News has been, in general, conservative, well run, and in diligent search of a safe controversy.

Quad, in 1963-64, made an appeal for broader student contribution, but tenaciously clung to its carefully cultivated image as the haven of the iconoclast and the tortured intellectual.

The Southern Accent has ranged in format from artificial cynicism (1961) to last minute sloppiness (1962) and finally to an admixture of both of these, with a glaze of ivy-covered sentimentality in 1963. The quality of this year's product has yet to be determined.

the hilltop news

Believing that a college newspaper should adjust its policies each year to meet the requirements of evolving attitudes among students, the Hilltop News attempted to use its weekly four pages to reflect the progress of the campus toward its proclaimed goal—excellence.

Facts of news were printed, along with feature stories complementing and humanizing the facts, but, more important, we tried to clarify those areas where there was misunderstanding between "administration" and students. We refused to take sides, thereby allowing us the flexibility of criticizing where we felt there was an abuse of campus harmony.

Our purpose was to contribute honesty to news, interest to features, dignity to arguments, fairness to controversy, and active loyalty to ideals. Perhaps we were successful. If not, we hope you accept our efforts with the same respect that we hold for yours.

quad, 1964

Quad, the literary magazine for this campus, draws its material from those students who wish to give expression to creativity which goes beyond their academic studies. This year Quad is presenting two separate issues which, it is hoped, will give everyone interested a chance for creative expression in literature as well as other areas of productive thought.

Quad for this year, as in years past, offers to the interested student an opportunity to have his work published if only in a student magazine. Of the works submitted, the student editorial staff chooses those works which they consider best, to be published in either the winter or spring publication.

Quad makes only one request of its readers—give each selection a careful reading before passing judgment.

the 1964

Each year it becomes the unvoiced duty of the Southern Accent staff to present Birmingham-Southern College in a fresh and novel manner. The Accent, in past years, has pictured 'Southern as a harmonious campus with rolling green hilltops, or has portrayed 'Southern through a series of "hilarious" cutlines, endowing the college with an over-abundance of school spirit.

Contrary to previous opinions, we feel that a college annual by definition should be an honest pictorial resume of a specific college during a specific year. This year we have tried to utilize a larger staff enabling us to give the attitudes and opinions of more than a few people. We have also broken new ground in that we have added more copy to each section, captioned pictures with names, and tried to cover each event of the college with a critical shutter and pen.

Perhaps we have been too harsh in our interpretation, or are the requirements of our definition too stringent? We make no apologies. At the same time we have not gone beyond our definition to appease a particular person, policy, or group. Only through an honest evaluation of Birmingham-Southern College in 1963-1964 can this Southern Accent be of any value to you.

ADDS STEEL PIPE PRODUCING FACILITY

You're looking inside the new American Steel Pipe Division plant recently completed at ACIPCO and now in production. This new facility means additional employment, additional production, and additional growth for ACIPCO and for Birmingham. As has been said before, the success of one contributes to the other. We're proud of our mutual progress. And as the nation knows the name of AMERICAN as a leading source of quality cast iron pipe and steel tubing, you can be sure our steel pipe will take its important position. The men and women of ACIPCO are proud of the part our company and our people have played in contributing to the civic and cultural growth of the community. Yes . . . it is nice to live in Birmingham.

SECURITY and FREEDOM

The Statue of Liberty is an important symbol to all Americans because it represents the freedom which is the foundation of our way of life. Our Company is proud to use it as its trademark.

Men to remain free must provide security for themselves and their families and most American families have found life insurance to be the best way to provide this security Liberty National Life Insurance Company is providing a large measure of security for many families. Over a third of a billion dollars is held by the Company for the protection of policyowners. Perhaps this financial strength is one of the reasons why more and more people each year buy their life insurance from Liberty National.

The business staff asks that each student do two things in regard to the advertisements appearing in this section: after looking at the pictures go back and read the copy, and if you have the opportunity patronize our advertisers. Without the support and generosity of our advertisers, this issue of the Southern Accent would not have been possible.
